Diffuse interface modelling for multiphase flows.

Abstract:

I will discuss the diffuse interface modeling of multiphase flows using the Cahn Hilliard model that was originally derived to describe phase separation in alloys. During the presentation, after a discussion of different approaches, I will discuss the convergence properties of the CH model. I will present some numerical results on the hydrodynamic coarsening process in phase separated glasses.